Has your workforce received sufficient fire warden training?

The Regulatory Reform Fire Safety Order 2005 requires a responsible person(s) to manage fire safety in all workplaces.

The 'responsible person' is usually the employer, manager or owner of the premises. Other members of staff may also undertake roles as fire wardens.

Fire wardens have specific duties to perform to ensure that everyone can leave an establishment safely and as quickly as possible in the event of a fire.

Is your workforce familiar with the company procedure in the event of a fire? Do they know who the fire warden is?

The Health and Safety Executive

Who is fire warden training for?

Everyone in the workplace needs to be familiar with the fire warden's role, including the regular checks that they must make and the protocols that they will lead during a real fire. This course educates fire wardens on how to prevent fires, how to run fire drills and how to manage a workforce in the event of a fire.

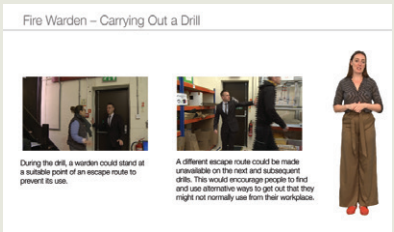
What does the fire warden course cover?

The fire warden course covers:

- The role of a fire warden
- Weekly site checks
- Site equipment inspections
- How to carry out fire drills

What is the benefit of fire warden training for your business?

This training provides workplace fire wardens with detailed information on how to keep working establishments as safe as possible from fire. Fire wardens will also learn how to act in the event of a real fire. Staff can complete their training at any time to suit your needs.



Video Presentations. Interactive Games. Final Exam – Certificates Provided.

Fire safety is based mainly on the Regulatory Reform Fire Safety Order 2005, which is centred on the use of risk assessments.
